

J O R I A N H I L L

THE ARMCHIAR OENOPHILE

2007 BEEspoke

“...it’s a very soft, 50-50 split of grenache and syrah. There are rounded, almost cooling notes of smoke and spiced red fruit, which hint at a change in seasons taking place (that is, in places where such things can be experienced).”

It would make a wonderful first great red wine for the fall, to be served on September 22. Even though the autumnal equinox doesn’t take place until 8:09 p.m. (PST), it won’t breach anyone’s protocol if you open it at say, 7-ish.”

-Anthony Head
September 1, 2010